Offshore hole to be marked with warning signs, pilings

A U.S. Army Corps of Engineers spokesman says part of a hole in the Mississippi Sound off Waveland is still a danger to swimmers.

During the past 12 years at least 24 people have drowned in the hole, which is 1,400 to 1,500 feet offshore and has a diameter of about 20 feet.

According to Corps public affairs officer Sam Green, in a Sun-Herald story on Saturday pilings and warning signs will be erected around the hole.

Last year, the Corps entered a $469,457 contract for surface recontouring and packing sand into the hole, which measured 800 feet by 400 feet and was created when the agency replenished the beach after Hurricane Betsy hit the area in 1965.

Checks of the area over the past several months showed trouble only with the 20-foot area that will be marked off, Green said.

The top of the hole is covered with about an inch and a half of sand, but the rest of it is filled with soft material that has caused problems in the past.

Dredging crews are expected to begin working on the area in the near future in hopes of eliminating the problem, Green added.

Youth requires surgery after Beach Road mishap

By NAN PATTON EHRBRIGHT
A 15-year-old youth required surgery following an accident Thursday on Beach Boulevard in Waveland.

Police Chief Donald Dorn reported that a vehicle driven by Bobby J. Kneal, 26, of 14 Greenbriar Dr. in Gulfport, was traveling west on Beach Boulevard near Mollers Drive when Kyle Bergman, 15, of Long Jack, Mo., darted from in front of a parked van.

"The vehicle struck him with the left front bumper and knocked him into the eastbound lane," Dorn said.

Dorn said his office received a call reporting the accident at 11:42 a.m. and sent an officer to the scene.

Bergman was taken to Hancock General Hospital by Mobil Medie Ambulance Service, and HGH Director of Community Affairs Mary Perkins reported late Thursday afternoon that he was scheduled for surgery for a fracture.

No citations were issued in connection with the incident, Dorn said.

Pioneers stage state convention

More than 600 persons attended the annual meeting of the Mississippi Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers of America in Biloxi this past weekend, May 25 and 26.

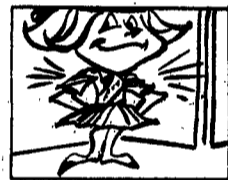

The two day statewide annual assembly was held at the Royal d'Iberville Hotel. Business meetings, workshops, and recreational events were highlight activities.

Incoming state officers are A. Hugh Sisson, president; Jim Hogue, vice president; and Doris Kelly, secretary/treasurer. The new Gulf Coast Council president is Sybil Allen, succeeding Paul Love.

The Pioneer organization is the largest social-industrial association in the world. It has 578,280 members throughout the United States and Canada.

Its members all have 18 years or more of service in the telephone industry and they engage in hundreds of programs to aid physically, socially and emotionally handicapped persons, as well as promote fellowship and loyalty among telephone people.

This year they exceeded 114,000 volunteer hours on constitutional amendment and an accompanying statute dealing with conflicts of interest on the part of public officials, saying the measures would permit profiteering.

Taylor and three other Gulf Coast legislators voted against the amendment. The others were Thomas A. Gollott, Biloxi; Richard Stephen Hale, Moss Point; and Bob Usey, Gulfport.

In announcing the program, which is open to the public, Roberts Madden, CC field director, commended Taylor and the other Coast legislators for their vote on the measure, which the organization is planning to try to defeat when it goes to the voters this fall.

Following Taylor's address, Common Cause/Mississippi will hold its quarterly board meeting, which is also open to the public.

Died June 4, 1983

The Year has taught us many things, but none so sure as this: That shelter, solace, joy and strength are always where God is.

So now when hope and courage fail and only fear is strong.

Our heart will sing as in the past an forgotten song.

God is our refuge and our strength. We will not be afraid.

And though the night be wild and dark, we'll meet it undismayed.

Successful camping requires planning

By Ann O. Runking
Extension Specialist

The chance to sleep under the stars and eat food fresh off the fire by camping out appeals to more and more people each year.

Camping can be an inexpensive way to travel, a leisure break from work and everyday pressures, a stimulating outdoor activity, and an entertaining way to encourage family closeness and cooperation.

Careful planning, proper equipment, and a few simple skills will practically guarantee an enjoyable camping experience for everyone involved.

The key to successful camping is planning. Plan the place, time and length of your trip; then, anticipate the fun while you plan and prepare for the right equipment, food and activities.

As you camp more and more, you'll learn to take only the equipment you actually need and use. Whether you'll pack a few pots, pans, and eating utensils or a more formal, organized box of many different utensils, will depend on your own style of camping and cooking. Consider the following general categories of equipment you'll probably need. Most kitchen equipment can be found in any kitchen cupboard and drawer (but you'll probably take older, less valuable pieces):

Cooking equipment - pots, pans, spatula, can opener, mixing spoons, hot pads, and an asbestos glove (or welder's mitt) for working around the fire form basic cooking equipment. You may also want to take Dutch oven, skewers for roasting and other specialized equipment.

Eating utensils - besides the usual plates, bowls, cups, flatware and napkins, you'll probably need a tablecloth and newspapers. Consider using disposable paper utensils to save washing.

Cleaning supplies - include dishwashing soap, a dish cloth, dishpan and some bleach for purifying drinking and wash water when necessary.

Fuel tools - if you'll be cooking over a wood fire, take a hatchet or ax, bow saw, long, and short-handled shovels and a good knife to make a fuzz stick for starting the fire.

You may want to take thermos bottles, an ice chest, cans, plastic garbage bags, and plastic bags to store food, equipment and garbage.

Keep food simple but plan for plenty since appetites increase in the outdoor atmosphere. Fruits, cereals and foods requiring little preparation are handy.

For a quick breakfast, prepackage cereal with powdered milk and sugar in a heavy plastic bag. When ready to eat, open bag, add water and serve. For a stronger container, slip the bag into a smaller tin-can "bowl."

Take along the makings for a campfire (charcoal, starter) or improvise your cooker from a large tin can. A skillet on an open fire also works for some foods.

Camping can be fun, relaxing and a pleasant change from the daily hustle and bustle of routine.

TV's Morris is mascot for Adopt-A-Cat-Month

Animal magnetism - cats have it in abundance. Cats are the ultimate in cool, but beneath it all, pure pussycat.

With a flick of the whiskers and a coy meow, a cat can get you playing its game, petting away, absorbed in its tranquilizing purrs, before you know it.

It's that innocent "where's my din-din" look that is hard to resist. No pet struts like a cat. Finds a lap like a cat, lounges as beautifully as a cat, touches as lovingly as a cat. A cat is mysterious one minute, playful the next.

Cats are proud, finicky, spontaneous, affectionate - qualities no cat lover can do without.

For the 26 million Americans with cats, it's no mystery why cats are becoming more popular all the time. Magnetic kittens or cats are waiting at the Hancock and Harrison County Humane Societies for a special person to take home.

June is National Adopt A Cat Month, now in its 10th year, sponsored by 9-Lives Cat Food.

Food for the American Humane Association and more than 700 humane societies, including the Hancock and Harrison County Humane Societies.

The Adopt A Cat campaign has as its symbol none other than Mr. Magnetism himself, TV's Morris, who turned on the charm to help homeless felines. Morris brought not only a sense of humor but a sense of pride to the cat world.

This star cat looks back on his own lapless, pre-celebrity days when, as a young stray he was forced to wander the streets.

He arrived at an East Coast humane society and it was here that 9-Lives recognized his screen potential, and signed him up.

Nationally, more than eight million lost, abandoned or otherwise homeless kittens and cats arrive at humane societies every year, according to the American Humane Association; close to 5,000 of these felines arrive at the Harrison County Humane Society.

Why is June such a special month for cats? It is the cats themselves who selected June as their prime time at humane societies.

Spring is the peak breeding season for cats, so kittens are especially plentiful now in addition to the adult cats usually available for adoption.

To give kittens and cats a good healthy start on their lives, the Harrison County Humane Society gives all animals their first immunization, entitles them to a free vet check up, and offers to pet owners a spay certificate to all female cats adopted in order to help reduce the serious pet overpopulation problem in the country, today.

Also, during the month of June the adopters will receive a free adoption kit with the Morris Method book of cat care, offering bits of wisdom from the star.

The Humane Society is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and is located on Washington Avenue in Gulfport. Adoption fees are $15 for cats and kittens, according to Eileen Loper, executive director.

Ad agency president speaks at MUW

Jo Foxworth of New York, N.Y., advertising agency president, author and public speaker, delivered the commencement address recently at Mississippi University for Women.

Foxworth, a native of Tyler, Texas, made an encore appearance as MUW's commencement speaker. She spoke at graduation in 1980 and was asked to return this year to speak to the "Charter Centennial Class," designated in honor of the W's 100th anniversary.

Owner of Jo Foxworth Inc. advertising agency, Miss Foxworth attended MUW and graduated from the University of Missouri with a degree in journalism.

She has been prominent in advertising circles since 1965 when an address she delivered at a national convention of the American Advertising Federation was reported by the Associated Press. Her "Nine Commandments for Women in Business" introduced in that address, were printed in more than 60 newspapers and are still being quoted today.

The MUW commencement speaker began her career in journalism at the Associated Press, where she worked for several years. She then moved to the advertising industry, where she has been successful for many years.

Penney Co., Celanese Corp. and United Fruit Co.

For 11 years Foxworth was a columnist for "Advertising Age." She served two terms as president of Advertising Women of New York and two terms as governor of the American Advertising Federation's second district. She has been named Advertising Woman of the Year by five professional organizations.

Winner of numerous awards for her creative work, for the past three years Foxworth has been a judge for the American Advertising Federation's Hall of Fame Awards. She has also judged entries in Clio Award competition.

Foxworth, who lives in Manhattan, is author of "Boss Lady" and "Wising Up," two non-fiction books.

Arthritis Foundation to hold public forum

The Gulf Coast Branch of the Arthritis Foundation will sponsor a free public forum on arthritis and other related rheumatic diseases June 4 from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. The meeting will be in the chapel of First Baptist Church in Gulfport.

Speakers on the panel include Dr. Beverly Myers, a Gulfport arthritis specialist; a physical therapist from Gulf Coast Physical Therapy and Beth Norfleet, a pharmacist from Garden Park Hospital.

They will each speak briefly on their specialty and then take part in a question and answer program discussing the common and unusual problems of arthritis.

New and old treatments, self-help ideas, medications and arthritis research are some of the topics to be discussed.

The program is provided as a public service by the Arthritis Foundation to educate arthritics and their families about arthritis, a disease which affects over 36 million Americans including more than 250,000 children.

The Arthritis Foundation is the only national voluntary health agency leading the search for the cause, prevention and control of arthritis. The Mississippi chapter and the Gulf Coast branch serve through research, patient service and public education about arthritis.

For more information about the forum or the 100 different forms of rheumatic disease including the more common forms such as osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, lupus, gout and juvenile arthritis, call the local branch office at 688-2018 or write the Arthritis Foundation, P. O. Box 6481, Gulfport, MS 39506.

JUDICIAL POWER AND THE CONSTITUTION

By Gary L. McDowell

(Gary L. McDowell teaches Political Science at Newcomb College of Tulane University, and is co-director of the Center for the Study of the Constitution at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa.)

Theme: Congress has the power to restrict the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.

Editor's Note: Does Congress have legitimate power to limit the courts and thus make them responsible to the political process?

Critics of the federal judiciary argue that its decisions do not reflect either the will of the people or sound public policy.

Finding the courts unresponsive, they have sought relief from Congress, either through statutes restricting the courts' jurisdiction or constitutional amendments.

But these are not the first proposals of this kind. Today's critics and defenders of the courts are both part of a tradition of debate over the place of the judiciary in the federal government.

Professor McDowell traces this argument to its origins in the debate over the Constitution's ratification.

Since their creation—or at least since John Marshall became Chief Justice in 1801—the federal judiciary in general and the Supreme Court in particular have never been immune from politics.

Thomas Jefferson grumbled that in Marshall's hands the Constitution was "nothing more than an ambiguous text, to be explained by his sophistry into any meaning which may subserve his personal malice."

Abraham Lincoln similarly charged that Chief Justice Roger Taney had done "obvious violence" to the meaning of the Declaration of Independence.

And Dwight Eisenhower concluded that his selection of Earl Warren as Chief Justice was "the biggest damn fool mistake" of his presidency.

All told, the Court has never been able to stand free of the whirl of political life.

Public debate over the role of the judiciary has not waned. Routinely, assorted proposals are introduced into Congress to restrict the jurisdiction of the courts, to modify their procedures, and to amend or overturn controversial decisions—such as those on abortion, school busing, and school prayer.

Such controversy is inherent in the very nature of judicial power; for even the most famous defense of judicial power, Alexander Hamilton's in The Federalist No. 78, was written in response to criticisms raised by the opponents of the Constitution.

When the Constitution was first published after the Federal Convention, not much attention was paid to Article III, which created the Federal Judiciary.

In fact, Hamilton through his early defense of that branch in The Federalist No. 22 was sufficient.

"Laws," he confidently asserted, "are a dead letter without courts to expound and define their true meaning and operation."

Such a want of judicial power had in fact proved to be one of the crowning defects of the Articles of Confederation. But Hamilton misjudged the situation. Sharp-eyed opponents saw in the judiciary the very seed of despotism.

One Anti-Federalist writer argued that there was "no feature in a free government more difficult to be well formed" than the judiciary.

To his way of thinking, judicial authority was always a potential source of unlimited power.

Under the Constitution, there was a lack of fixed limits on judicial discretion; the result would be that many sensitive public issues would come to rest on nothing more certain than "the wisdom, integrity, and politics of the judges."

It was for this reason that one had to be wary of the judicial power under the Constitution. For to allow judges to make decisions based on their "conscience, their opinions, their caprice, or their politics" was to sow the "seed of arbitrary government."

To another Anti-Federalist writer the dangers were equally clear.

There was nothing to limit the awesome power of interpretation. The Court would possess the power to "explain the Constitution according to the reasoning spirit of it, without being confined to the words or letter."

The inevitable result would be a tacit grant of power to the judges to "mould the government into almost any shape they please."

The most likely use of such judicial power would be the near-annihilation of the states as separate political entities with sovereignty sufficient actually to govern.

Hamilton returned to the defense of the proposed judiciary in The Federalist No. 78. His arguments came to be the arguments of Chief Justice Marshall in Marbury vs. Madison (1803) where the power of judicial review (a power never seriously endangered by public outrage) was established.

To Hamilton, the judiciary was simply that branch of the new government "least dangerous to the political rights of the Constitution."

Because the courts would be empowered to exercise "neither force nor will but merely judgment" the citizenry need not fear judicial usurpations.

"Not only was an independent and vital judiciary consistent with limited popular government, it was essential to that form of government."

In order for the courts to become the "bulwarks of a limited Constitution," Hamilton and his fellow Federalists knew that they had to be given sufficient power.

But, as the Anti-Federalists knew, the principles of limited popular government demanded that there be some security lest the courts go too far.

There was a danger from judges who would presume "to roam at large in the trackless fields of their own imaginations" in reaching their judgments.

The solution provided by the Constitution was a simple one: the Constitution created only judicial power; it permitted Congress to structure and regulate the judicial process.

Thus, by its provisions, the Constitution creates a judiciary that is not completely immune from political pressures, but one that is not overly dependent upon popularity for fulfilling its constitutional duties.

The contemporary movement to curb the courts, therefore, is heir to a rather proud political tradition. Whether by proposed amendments or by statutory regulation of the courts, the present Congressional proponents of judicial restraint are exercising their constitutional prerogatives in ways that are neither new nor dangerous.

To their critics these measures may seem imprudent or impolitic, but they are certainly constitutionally legitimate.

Council on Aging warns against medicine misuse

Drugs can be your friends or your enemies, depending upon how they are used or misused. That is especially true for senior citizens who as a group use more drugs than other segments of the population.

When used properly, drugs and medicine can be a great help. But when misused, there is a potential for great danger.

The Mississippi Council on Aging of the Governor's Office of Human Development recently released information on the proper and safe use of medicine.

The council urges all Mississippians, especially the elderly, to closely heed the information. Although persons over 65 make up to 11 percent of the American population, they consume 25 percent of prescription drugs sold in the country, making the potential for misuse that much greater.

Basic rules for safe drug use include: Take exactly the amount of medicine prescribed and follow the dosage schedule recommended by your physician.

Never take drugs prescribed for someone else, even if symptoms are the same.

Tell your doctor about past problems you had with drugs and what drugs, including non-prescription medicine, you are currently taking.

It may help to keep a daily record of drugs taken, especially if your treatment schedule is complicated or you are taking more than one drug.

If child-proof containers are difficult to open, ask your pharmacist for easy-to-open containers but be sure to keep them away from children.

Be sure you understand directions printed on the medicine label.

Throw out old medicine.

Ask your doctor about side effects of drugs, about how they should be stored and what foods or beverages, if any, should be avoided while taking the medicine.

Contact your doctor immediately if you notice any unusual reactions.

Reasons for misuse of medicine by senior citizens were cited in a study of the problem conducted by the U.S. Senate Special Committee on Aging, chaired by Sen. John Glenn of Ohio.

Unintentional reasons for misuse include misunderstanding a doctor's instructions and forgetting the correct dosage, according to the committee.

These problems can be avoided by having your doctor write out instructions in full and by maintaining a calendar for scheduled drug usage.

The committee cited a survey of senior citizens showing a dislike of the prescription is the major reason for intentional misuse. Others include not following the doctor's instructions, bad side effects and the cost of medicine.

The committee also developed instructions for use of non-prescription drugs, which generally are not as strong and therefore may be obtained without a prescription. But even non-prescription drugs are dangerous when misused.

Recommendations include reading product labels thoroughly before purchasing any drugs, following directions and observing warnings carefully, including warnings about mixing drugs.

WHAT IS STROKE?

A stroke occurs when the blood supply to part of the brain is halted by either a clot, a ruptured vessel or pressure on the blood vessel by a tumor. Strokes are more likely to occur when arteries leading to the brain have been previously damaged by a disease process called hardening of the arteries. Warning signs of a possible stroke may include temporary loss of speech, loss of vision or double vision, unexplained headaches or dizziness. Regular medical checkups are the best protection against strokes. Contact your local American Heart Association for more information.

DIFFERENT THOUGHTS ABOUT EDUCATION

A former deputy superintendent in the Boston, Mass. public school system has an interesting observation relative to the search for excellence in education.

First, she points out that Boston's public school teachers are paid some $7,000 per year above the national average, their average pay now at over $27,400 per year.

Next, she reports that the teacher's work day is just five and three-quarter hours, and that teachers are paid at the rate of $18 per hour for any hours above that average day.

She then points out that Boston students have some of the poorest achievement scores in the country, that the schools have a 50 percent dropout rate, and that more than half the students entering high school are reading several years below their grade levels.

The Boston experience, she suggests, contradicts the usual argument that more money and better pay for teachers will, somehow, automatically improve the performance of students.

She offers another solution to the problem of improving schools. Her suggestions are worth considering. Said Rosemarie Vairo Rosen, just out of the Boston school system:

"Education must learn to compete. School administrators must become comfortable with the language and procedures of budget justification, cost-benefit analysis, and the concept of the bottom line. If schools are not delivering a good product in a fiscally responsible way, this new interest in education will quickly turn to disillusionment."

And she adds, "Good management of resources; people, dollars, and time has become and will continue to be the most reliable way to achieve educational outcomes, because large amounts of new resources are not likely to be forthcoming."

Focus on Small Business

By Dorothy A. Overal
Public Information Officer
Biloxi Branch Office

Q: Many small businesses are run by one person and/or members of the owner's immediate family. Is this the general rule among small firms?

A: If you consider that between 1980 and 1982 small businesses accounted for almost one million new net jobs, you can easily see that small businesses employ more than just family members.

As a matter of fact, small business employs 47.8 percent of the entire private non-farm work force, according to the President's Report on the State of Small Business, which was recently transmitted to Congress.

The report, which is prepared by the U.S. Small Business Administration, shows that small businesses are more likely to generate jobs which will be filled by younger workers, older workers and women.

In addition, small firm is more likely than a large firm to accommodate the "various needs" of these workers—many of whom prefer to or are only able to work on a flexible basis—providing more part-time work opportunities.

Contrary to popular notion, small businesses are more likely to provide the training for the first-time job seeker than large firms are.

Small businesses are also responsible for the majority of new jobs created in the private sector.

workers; rather, small business crosses the entire spectrum of the job market.

Q: Has anyone been able to determine how businesses in the newly deregulated industries have been faring?

A: If you consider that new business starts are increasing faster in deregulated industries than in the economy as a whole, it seems that business is very good.

That information was recently published in the President's Report on the State of Small Business, which President Reagan signed last month and sent to Congress.

The report is prepared annually by the Small Business Administration's Office of Advocacy.

The report showed that more and more small companies are finding it easier and more profitable to operate in the deregulated fields of transportation, communications and financial services.

In fact, during 1982 and 1983, companies started rose 35 percent in the deregulated financial services field and rose 14 percent in the transportation and communications industries.

That compares with a 10 percent increase in the total number of new business starts in the economy.

Small businesses are also responsible for the majority of new jobs created in the private sector.

LET THE SUNSHINE IN. Anachronism: A person, object, thing or event that is out of place, especially one appropriate to an earlier period.

—Random House Dictionary

Here we are, about a third of the way through 1984, with governments at every level making themselves more accessible to the general public.

We have the Freedom of Information Act, which is used and, yes, in some cases abused, to provide material of a private nature.

We have the Ethics in Government Act, which enforces standards of conduct for elected and appointed officials in the federal government. It can lead to examination of business dealings and tax records.

The most sensitive documents imaginable on national defense and the armed military have been leaked to the media and published in the newspapers. Political campaigns have had to defend themselves against charges of impropriety in the operation of their campaigns.

Internal office files, the private papers of presidents and other high-ranking officials have been made available to the public.

And now, the Federal Reserve System was established in 1913, the discretion of its executives was limited by the system under which they had to operate.

Conditions have changed, but the Federal Reserve continues to formulate policy involving the money supply under relative secrecy. There remains an amazing lack of accountability to the public.

I joined with a group of congressmen last week in introducing legislation designed to correct the flaws in the system, to make the Federal Reserve more accountable to the public.

Especially important to me is information on decisions from the Federal Open Market Committee.

This committee can decide whether to raise or lower the money supply, which in turn determines how high interest rates are paid on the state of the economy generally.

It is a powerful tool, and it is important that the public know what it is doing and why it is doing it.

So, let the sunshine in. Let the public know what the Federal Reserve is doing and why it is doing it.

Let the public know what the Federal Reserve is doing and why it is doing it.

Phillips College appoints two from Gulfport

Phillips College of Gulfport has announced the appointment of Jerry Sue Hargrove as dean of academic affairs and Dennis Dollar as director of admissions.

The appointments are effective immediately, according to Ann Gibson, college director.

Mrs. Hargrove, a graduate of the Gulfport school system, is Summa Cum Laude graduate of William Carey College with a bachelor's degree in business education and a master's degree in education.

She has been employed at Phillips College for more than 14 years as a teacher, department chairperson and in other various administrative positions. In 1978, Mrs. Hargrove received the Outstanding Teacher Award by the Private Commercial Schools Association and the Southeastern Business College Association. She is the wife of Gulfport Police Chief Hayward T. Hargrove.

Dollar, also a graduate of the Gulfport school system, received his bachelor's degree at the University of Mississippi. He has been an instructor at Phillips College for four years and has served in several other administrative capacities.

He served eight years in the Mississippi House of Representatives from Harrison County and is active in

Storm trackers prepare for '84 hurricane season

The 1984 hurricane season started Friday with Keesler Air Force base weather units ready for whatever the season will bring.

The 1983 season was the quietest in more than 50 years, producing only four named storms. Only Hurricane Alicia was serious, killing 21 people when it slammed into Galveston, Texas.

Members of Keesler's "Storm Trackers" of the 65th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, Air Force Reserve, and "Hurricane Hunters" of the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron are called upon to track hurricanes during the official hurricane season, which runs from June 1 through November 30 each year.

Training flights have been departing Keesler daily, insuring that aircrews will be fully qualified to investigate this season's first storm.

Storm flights are generated by the National Hurricane Center (NHC) in Coral Gables, Fla., after weather forecasters there scan satellite photos for suspicious-looking cloud areas and determine a potential storm. The NHC then requests aerial surveillance of the suspect area by the Air Force through the Chief, Aerial Reconnaissance Coordinator, All Hurricanes (CARCAH), an Air Force agency stationed at NHC.

CARCAH then notifies units at Keesler to provide aerial reconnaissance. Operations officers of the two units determine who will take the mission based on availability of aircraft and crew.

Carrying a crew of six including an aerial reconnaissance weather officer and an enlisted weather observer, the WC-130 Hercules follows a storm system for days at a time.

If the area to be investigated is beyond the range of the Hercules operating from Keesler, several aircraft and crews are deployed to a forward operating base in the Caribbean to carry out the mission. Investigative flights sometimes traverse over 3,000 miles and require up to 13 hours. However, crews at Keesler are prepared for such eventualities.

Should the system develop into a named storm, aircraft and crews continue tracking every six hours. They track constantly when the storm is within 150 miles of land, reporting meteorological information on temperature, pressure, humidity, cloud structure, wind velocity and exact storm position.

Normally, each hurricane season in the Atlantic region has averaged 10 named storms, about half of which usually become hurricanes with sustained winds of 74 miles per hour or more.

Mississippi Power explains procedures

If a hurricane slams into southeast Mississippi this year, Mississippi Power Company is prepared to restore electric power to its customers as quickly as possible.

"We've developed a comprehensive plan of action that prepares us for the work necessary for hurricane restoration," said George East, general manager, electrical engineering and operations.

"Hurricane season began Friday and most of our 23-county service area is susceptible to heavy damage from a major storm. The hurricane procedures that have been developed will help get the electricity flowing quickly and safely after a hurricane."

East said restart time after a hurricane depends on the severity of the storm, the area it strikes and the amount of damage it creates. "If it is a tropical storm we will have most power restored within three days. But if it is a major hurricane, it will take us from one to three weeks to get most power restored."

Mississippi Power Company's hurricane procedures include safety precautions and detailed instructions for personnel to follow before, during and after the storm.

"We review these procedures with our employees before hurricane season so they will be fresh in their minds," East said. "This helps our employees understand what is expected of them during restoration so they can go right to work and do a safe, efficient job."

In preparing for possible storms, Mississippi Power Company checks its stock of equipment and tools needed for repairs after a hurricane. Vital power restoration equipment such as two-way radios are also tested.

"By having detailed instructions for our personnel and by having adequate materials, we are ensuring our customers that if a hurricane should hit Mississippi Power Company's service area, we're prepared," East said.

Mississippi Power Company has also arranged for assistance from other utilities in the event of heavy storm damage to electrical facilities. Mississippi Power Company, a member of the Southern Company, would first call its sister utilities — Alabama, Georgia and Gulf power companies — for additional crews. If these were unavailable, Mississippi Power Company could draw from other neighboring utilities under mutual assistance contracts.

East said Mississippi Power's recently energized 500 kilovolt transmission line that extends across the Gulf Coast from Jackson County to the Louisiana state line should boost reliability of service after a major storm.

"The 500 kilovolt line will provide us with a major source of electric power from another utility into Mississippi Power Company's service area," East said. "This additional power source makes for a better, stronger system and could provide faster restart of service after a hurricane."

In 1970 Mississippi Power Company was presented the Edison Award by the Edison Electrical Institute for efficiency in restoring electric service to southeast Mississippi after Hurricane Camille in 1969.

Hurricane Frederic, the last hurricane to affect Mississippi Power Company's service area, did more than $5 million in damage to electrical equipment in 1979.

Mississippi Power Company serves more than 166,000 customers in 23 southeast Mississippi counties.

Alabama police arrest Kiln robbery indictee

A Lakeshire man charged with the armed robbery of the Kiln Mall Market last December has been arrested in Alabama.

Police in Anniston, Ala., turned Ricky Curet, 23, over to Hancock County authorities Wednesday after he waived extradition procedures. Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said Curet is being held on $20,000 bond.

Curet was indicted for the crime in January with two accomplices, Allen Carter and Mark Cuevas. However, he apparently left the county before he could be arrested.

The sheriff said Curet's name was placed on the NCIC, a computer index listing the names of individuals being sought by authorities. Police in Anniston picked him up because "he looked suspicious," Peterson said, and contacted Hancock Sheriff's Department when they found him on the index.

Arraignment will probably be set for sometime in July, Peterson said. Already scheduled for July is a trial for Cuevas, who is currently free on bond. Carter pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to Parchman State Penitentiary.

All three have also been indicted for armed robbery of a house trailer in Harrison County.

Challenger astronaut tells adventures in space at NSTL

By NAN PATTON EHRLIGHT
Officials plan to retrieve the two satellites lost during the Challenger's fourth flight into space by the end of the year, NASA Astronaut Robert Stewart said during a visit to Hancock County's NSTL Visitors Center Thursday.

Stewart, a University of Southern Mississippi graduate and a colonel in the U.S. Army, made his first space flight on the Challenger's February mission.

Thursday he talked about the flight and showed photos taken from the Shuttle.

His visit was part of a Distinguished Lecturer Series sponsored by the National Oceanographic Research and Development Administration.

Stewart and Bruce McCandless performed the first untethered space walks using the gas-powered Manned Maneuvering Unit (MMU).

The MMU is a self-contained backpack with nitrogen gas propulsion that allows orbiters crews to move outside the payload bay to other parts of the orbiter or to other spacecraft.

"The space suits we used are very different from the one-piece suits that zip up," he said.

"These are two-piece with a hard torso."

The life support system is permanently fixed in back of the spacesuit and there are no complicated hose connections, he noted.

Stewart said improvements were needed in space suit mobility.

"It's like working on a Swiss watch wearing boxing gloves," he commented.

Stewart discussed life aboard a spacecraft and improvements in living quarters and food preparation.

"The quarters are pretty crowded," he said, and drew a laugh from the nearly-full auditorium when he said the federal government would never consider putting five prisoners in a cell the same size.

Stewart also discussed onboard experiments with arthritic rats and pointed out various studies that can be assisted by photographs from space including vegetation, mineral deposits, community growth and development, ocean temperatures and tidal pulses.

A unique film camera system, Cinema-360, flew aboard the Challenger.

Two cameras, one located in the crew module and one in the payload bay, were used to provide a test for 35mm motion photography in a format designed especially for planetarium viewing.

The flight was the first in a series of three for the camera system to film shuttle mission activities for a documentary film entitled "An American Adventure."

Davis Planetarium in Jackson has primary responsibility for production of the film, which is a joint endeavor between Cinema-360 and NASA.

Challenger's fourth flight also marked the first shuttle landing on the 15,000-foot runway at Kennedy Space Center.

"It was not," Stewart emphasized, "the same kind of landing you make in an airplane!"

Bay background essential to presidential assistant

The White House is a long way from the bakery in Bay St. Louis where Mary Jo Jacobi grew up.

But it was in that Main Street bakery owned by her parents, Lawrence and Toddy Jacobi, that the presidential assistant learned her first lessons in business.

"I could see what went into making a doughnut and selling that doughnut and how many you had to sell before you could make a profit," Jacobi reminisced on a recent visit with parents here.

She said those early lessons are the foundation that helped her work her way up to Washington as President Reagan's special assistant for public liaison to the business community.

"I have been lucky but I've worked hard," she said. "I think to a degree you make your own luck."

Jacobi was also in New Orleans to make several speeches. She addressed the Wine and Spirits Wholesalers of America convention, a luncheon sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, and a meeting of the Small Business Administration.

She also participated in ribbon-cutting ceremonies at the World's Fair for the International Trades Administration exhibit.

Jacobi's job is to make the business community aware of the president's programs and activities, and to inform the president about attitudes and activities of the business community.

Jacobi, 32, graduated in business administration from Loyola University in 1973 and headed for Washington on a fellowship to George Washington University to study business.

But because the fellowship stipulated that a student could not work full time, and she couldn't afford the school without working, she refused it.

Instead, she took a full-time job on the Republican staff of the Senate Commerce Committee and paid her way through the university.

She later worked as a lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers and in the Washington office of the 3M Company.

She worked for Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige, becoming his director of business liaison before Reagan appointed her to her current post.

Jacobi said she eventually would like to be in business for herself in public relations.

SENIOR CITIZENS

Hancock County Senior Citizens Center is sponsoring a fourth bus trip to the World's Fair in New Orleans Wednesday, June 6, and may schedule other trips during the summer if interest is sufficiently high.

Interested fair-goers should call the center office at 467-9292 for details.

When that time comes, she said, she won't be afraid to take risks because she intends to work hard.

"They (her parents) taught me the value of hard work and gave me an appreciation for the value of money."

Phillips, Handshoe take medical degrees

University of Mississippi chancellor Dr. R. Gerald Turner delivered the address for the 28th annual University of Mississippi Medical Center commencement exercises in city auditorium on Sunday.

He also awarded degrees to some 381 health sciences students. The total included 156 for the MD; 115 for the BS in nursing; 14 for the PhD, the MS, the MS in nursing, and the master of combined sciences; and 40 for the DMD.

Graduates also included two for the BS in cytotechnology, six for the BS in medical record administration; nine for the BS in medical technology; 12 for the BS in nurse anesthetology; 23 for the BS in physical therapy; and five for the BS in respiratory therapy.

UMC graduates and their families were honored at a breakfast hosted by alumni and at the chancellor's reception earlier on commencement day.

Among those receiving the MD degree were David Keith Handshoe and Michael Stephen Phillips.

Dr. Handshoe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Handshoe of Waveland. A 1980 graduate of Millsaps College, Dr. Hand-shoe will intern at the University of Michigan Affiliated Hospitals in Ann Arbor.

Dr. Phillips is the son of Rep. Walter J. Phillips and Ms. Inger Phillips, both of Bay St. Louis.

A 1980 graduate of Ole Miss, he will intern at Rosneke Memorial Hospital in Virginia.

Dr. Phillips is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha national honorary medical society and Phi Kappa Phi, national honorary scholastic society.

The old engine will pull the Mississippi Railway and Transportation Museum's train and will begin operation on Sunday, June 17. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

State agency wins national awards

The Mississippi Department of Economic Development's Industrial Division has received the "American Economic Development Council's" Best of Class" award for its full-color ad promoting the state's enterprise zones.

In making the announcement Executive Director Bill Hackett said the award represents the best single ad for 1983 in competition with the other 49 states, chambers of commerce and other economic development agencies throughout the United States.

The industrial division's ad promoting Mississippi's available buildings was second place in the same category.

Princess Shoppe Teen Board tours New York

By JANET McQUEEN
The Princess Shoppe Teen Board is going places!

Twenty-five of the girls with six chaperones recently returned from a four day tour of New York City where they were guests of the popular teen-age fashion magazine, Seventeen.

The Bay St. Louis board has been accepted into the magazine's Youth Advisory Group whose membership is composed of Teen Boards nationwide selected from many qualified applicants.

The Princess Shoppe board includes ninth through 12th grades students from area high schools.

Those making the New York trip were Jodi Triche, Dina Hitt, Heidi Hille, Connally Compretta, Stacy Anderson, Jamie Town and Susie Treutel, all of Our Lady's Academy.

Also, Kristin Triche, Caytee Carter, Jan Frommeyer, Kristy Kidd, Stacy Carter, all of Bay High School; Cande Bode and Jennifer Gilmore both of Coast Episcopal; Rosalyn Webb, Pass Christian High School; and Jul Lee Pursley, Jefferson Davis Junior College.

And, Allison Irby, Elizabeth Head and Kim Vanderwolf, all of Long Beach High School; Anna Stroble and Kristy Saylor, both of Ocean Springs High School; Tanya Ballanco and Julie Ballanco, both of Bishop Chapelle High School, New Orleans; Katherine Harris, Deland High School, Deland, Fla., and Sharon Schatzle, St. John High School, Gulfport.

A highlight of the trip was a tour of Seventeen Magazine's headquarters, where models presented an advance showing of the "Fall Fashion Forecast," featured in Seventeen's back-to-school issue.

Representative Allison Irby submitted the group's scrapbook, a narrative of the past year's activities, for judging. Princess Shoppe manager Jane Ann Fahey reported the Seventeen panel was "most impressed" with the girls' work.

The chaperones who accompanied the group, in addition to Mrs. Fahey, included Mrs. Eleanor Rogers, Teen Board coordinator; Mrs. Katherine Harris, Deland, Fla.; Mrs. Princess Fahey, Princess Shoppe owner; Pat Davis, assistant manager, Phillips Business College; and Mrs. Marguerite Jouban of Pass Christian, owner of Kalif-Billingsley Insurance Agency. The group's itinerary was non-stop and featured New York's most popular tourist attractions.

Mrs. Fahey recounted the following log of their activities:

"We flew from New Orleans on a Thursday and attended the play '42nd Street' that evening.

On Friday we met with Seventeen magazine and toured NBC studio. We went to the Waldorf Astoria, saw Rockefeller Plaza and had tea at The Palm Court at the Plaza Hotel. That night we went to see 'A Chorus Line.'

Saturday's travels took them to Fifth Avenue, where points of interest included St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Trump Tower, Tiffany's, Gucci's, and Sak's Fifth Avenue.

"We enjoyed a relaxing buggy ride through Central Park and shopped at Bloomingdale's," she added.

The day was completed with dinner at Tavern on the Green in Central Park.

Sunday's agenda featured a tour of the Wall Street area, The Empire State Building, World Trade Center, United Nations building and The Bowery. Other stops were SoHo, the Village and a walking tour of Chinatown, where they visited a temple and Chinese shops.

"At Battery Park," Fahey said, "we had a beautiful view of Bedloe's Island and the Statue of Liberty. The rest of the afternoon was spent at the South Street Seaport, which was full of many fun and interesting things to do, see and eat! We dined at Mama Leone's and danced at the famous Wednesday's disco."

"On Monday," she concluded, "we returned home—happy, very tired and already planning next year's trip."

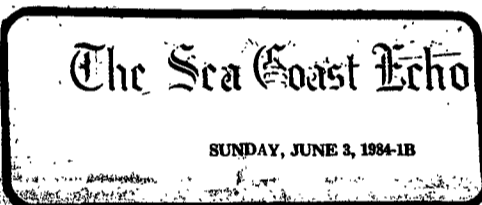

SEVENTEEN HEADQUARTERS—Arriving at Seventeen Magazine headquarters, to tour the facility, are Teen Board members Kristy Kidd, left, and Jan Frommeyer, both of Waveland. The Princess Shoppe group has recently been selected to be on the magazine's Youth Advisory Board.

CHINATOWN TEMPLE—Mrs. Marguerite Jouban, chaperone, and Princess Shoppe Teen Board members Kim Vanderwolf, Kristin Triche and Dina Hitt learn Chinese traditions during a visit to a Buddhist temple on their recent New York trip.

Leary—Ladner

Mr. Prieur James Leary announces the engagement of his daughter, Catherine Shannon Leary, to Mr. Luther Douglas Ladner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claiborne Joseph Ladner of Bay St. Louis. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mrs. Prieur James Leary.

The wedding will be solemnized in early June at the chapel of the Sacred Heart Academy, New Orleans, La., with a reception immediately following.

Miss Leary, whose mother is the former Miss Miriam Hartson, was graduated from the Academy of the Sacred Heart and received a bachelor of arts degree in special education from the University of Southern Mississippi.

She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Maurice John Hartson and the late Mr. and Mrs. John Leary.

Mr. Ladner, whose mother is the former Miss Beatrice Williams, was graduated from Bay St. Louis High School and attended the University of Southern Mississippi.

He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alcide Ladner and the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Williams. Following a wedding trip the couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Collins—Tilton

Mrs. Marilyn Collins and Mr. Thomas William Collins, both of Brookings, S.D., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Mary Belle Collins to David Michael Tilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Tilton Jr. of Metairie, La., and Mrs. Bjorn Lister of Waveland.

Mr. Tilton is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Tilton Jr. of Metairie, La., and Mrs. Bjorn Lister of Waveland.

Ma. Collins graduated from Brookings High School in Brookings, S.D., before moving to Metairie, La., where she is currently attending Grosmont College retirement apartment.

Mr. Tilton is a graduate of St. Ann's High School. He attended the University of New Orleans and is now employed in the USS Salpan, New Orleans, La.

The wedding has been scheduled for The Chapel in the Washington, D.C.

Marshall—Bensabat

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church was the setting for the May 19 marriage of Caroline Lilly Bensabat of Waveland and Philip Eugene Marshall of Umatilla, Fla.

Rev. Francis Farrell officiated at the 10:30 a.m. double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dunbar Bensabat of Waveland. The groom's parents are Retired Air Force Col. and Mrs. Albert Barnes Marshall of Umatilla, Fla.

Baskets of ivy, white gladioli, fuji mums and stephanotis decorated the sanctuary.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. John McKenna, organist, and Mrs. Ralph Songy of Chalmette, La., soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk taffeta fashioned with sweetheart neckline and fitted bodice enhanced with Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her skirt featured a cathedral length train and her cathedral length veil of illusion fell from a Juliet caplet of Alencon lace.

She carried a cascade of orchids, stephanotis and ivy. Mrs. Stephen Fleming Young of New Orleans, La., sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mark Perry Bensabat of Waveland; Miss Lori Elizabeth Reed of Coral Gables, Fla.; and Mrs. Bruce K. Evans of Eustis, Fla.

The attendants were identically attired in full length gowns of navy and white striped taffeta with navy cummerbunds. They carried cascades of pink lilies, white stephanotis and ivy.

David Hugh Bonk of St. Petersburg, Fla. was best man.

Groomsmen were Andrew Dunbar Bensabat of Waveland, brother of the bride; Richard E. Royal of Umatilla, Fla.; and Scott T. Stringer of Tallahassee, Fla.

Serving as ushers were Christopher Loeber Bensabat and Mark Perry Bensabat of Waveland, brothers of the bride; Harry Collins Marshall and Robert Dickinson Marshall of Atlanta and Albert Barnes Marshall Jr. of Clearwater, Fla., brothers of the groom.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Lang Argus.

On return from a wedding trip to San Francisco and Napa Valley, Calif., the couple will reside in Philadelphia, Pa.

Library Summer Reading programs open Wednesday

The summer reading program begins this week at the branches of the Hancock County Library System. Summer reading, which is sponsored by the Mississippi Library Commission, is a program designed to encourage elementary-aged children to read during summer vacation.

This summer's program, entitled "Let's Explore—Summer '84," offers one activity a week at each library branch.

The program will begin June 6 and conclude July 13. Activities will be offered on Wednesdays at Waveland, Thursdays at Bay St. Louis and Fridays at Kiln Library. Planned activities include a drop-in proof demonstration, computer registration, aerobics exercise, crafts, two feature films and an award party at each library to conclude the program.

Each participant will receive a bookmark, reading record and certificate.

"We invite every school-age child in Hancock County area to take part in the program," said Rebecca Michum Keefe, children's librarian.

For information call the main library at 467-5282.

MR. AND MRS. DANIEL JOSEPH BRADY

Brady—Goehrig

Ensigns Angela Jean Goehrig, USN of Long Beach and Daniel Joseph Brady, USN of Bay City, Mich. exchanged wedding vows May 19 in a 6 p.m. military ceremony at the Seabee Memorial Chapel in Gulfport with Rev. Claire Hendricks LCDR USN, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Lawrence and Gloria Goehrig of North Miami, Fla. The groom's parents are Thomas and Ann Brady of Bay City, Mich.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Dorothy Paulick of Bay City.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal bouffant-style gown of white crystalline organza over a high neckline, fitted bodice of ruffling and hand-clipped Italian lace with seed pearls. Her long, fitted sleeves were of lace and the full bouffant skirt was heavily trimmed in deep curled ruffles of crystalline flowing to a cathedral-length train. Her fingertip veil fell from a white lace caplet. She carried a cascade of white stephanotis, pink roses and English ivy.

Rhonda Ervine of North

Miami was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Catherine Goehrig of North Miami, sister of the bride; Debra Brady of Bay City and Diane Brady of Royal Oak, Mich., sisters of the groom.

Ellen Gotthardt of Gulfport was flower girl.

The honor attendant wore a rose colored satin gown with neck and sleeves of chantilly lace. Other attendants wore identical gowns in pink. Their headpieces were matching flowers with attached veils.

Ensign William Hughes, USN of Indian Harbor Beach, Fla. was best man.

Groomsman was Ensign Thomas Whalen, USN of Rockaway, N.J. Ushers were brothers of the bride Lawrence Goehrig Jr. and Louis Goehrig of North Miami.

Benjamin Swanson of Long Beach was ring bearer. A reception followed at the Officer's Club.

On return from a Caribbean cruise to Puerto Playta, San Juan, St. Thomas and Nassau, the bride will be stationed at NORDA, National Space Technology Laboratories and the groom at VQ-4, NAS Patuxent River, Md.

Ladner—Necaise

The forthcoming marriage of Mary Lynn Ladner to Don James Necaise is announced by her parents, Johnny Ladner of Dedeaux community and Mary Ellen Montgomery of Kiln. Mr. Necaise is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe J. Necaise Jr. of Rocky Hill community.

The bride elect is a 1982 graduate of Hancock North Central High School, where she was listed in Who's Who in Among American High School Students and was a member of the Beta Club. She attended Pearl River Junior College.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Everita Shiyu of Kiln and the late Manual Shiyu and Mr. and Mrs. John J.

Ladner Sr. of Dedeaux.

The prospective groom is a 1982 graduate of Hancock North Central, where he was included in Who's Who Among American High School Students. He attended Pearl River Junior College Vocational-Technical Center and is employed with Alcan Cable in Bay St. Louis.

Mr. Necaise is the grandson of Mrs. Leana Necaise of Pass Christian and the late Renis Necaise, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Necaise Sr.

The couple will solemnize vows in a 2 p.m. ceremony June 9 at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Dedeaux. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

MICHAEL PRENDERGAST AND PATRICIA MARTIN

Martin-Prendergast

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Martin of Orlando, Fla. announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Patricia Martin, to Michael Prendergast, son of Mrs. Madeline Prendergast of Bay St. Louis and the late Louis Prendergast Sr.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Colonial High School in Orlando. She attended Pearl River Junior College and is employed with Tranquility Trails.

Mr. Prendergast is a graduate of St. Stanislaus High School. He attended Pearl River Junior College and is employed with the Waveland Police Department.

The couple will exchange vows June 30 in a 2 p.m. ceremony at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

"Come on over - the crab trap was full, and I'm just putting the water on to boil." That was Carol Surgi's welcome invitation when I answered the phone the other morning, and you can be sure that I hurried on over for a good visit with Carol and George, and an impromptu feast of boiled crabs.

Carol even took pity on my arthritic fingers and helped me get all the delicious meat of the claws. That's friendship! When we had eaten our fill, Carol started picking the remainder of the crabs for stuffed crabs.

Like myself, Carol believes in making crabmeat stuffed crabs, not bread or crumb stuffing with a whiff or so of crab, so hers are always delicious. Then I remembered an old-time favorite in our family, an easily made but elegant entree and an excellent dish for a buffet supper party. Here's

CRABMEAT WITH AVOCADO

1 stick butter
2 cans cream of mushroom soup
1 lb. crabmeat, preferably lump
2 avocados
1 cup evaporated milk
2 Tbsp. bread crumbs
Melted butter
Pepper, salt to taste
1 cup chopped green onion, celery, parsley, combined
Melt the butter in a saucepan, add the soup, and simmer for approximately five minutes. Stir in the crabmeat, add the milk and seasonings and simmer for another five minutes or so. Peel and slice the avocados and line a baking dish with the slices.

Pour the crabmeat mixture over the avocado slices, sprinkle with bread crumbs. Brush with the melted butter. Heat in a 350 degree oven for 15 minutes or so until browned.

If you want to 'gild the lily' a bit more, before serving, just open a can of anchovy filets, sprinkle a few drops of the oil over the dish and garnish with the anchovy strips. (Four to six servings).

Picayune hairdressers join national group

The hairdressers of the Picayune area recently formed an affiliate of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Affiliation with the national organization will assist the hairdressers in bringing new styling and cosmetology techniques to the area.

The organizational meeting was held at Margaret Reed Memorial Library in Picayune. Kathryn Ball of Pascagoula, co-chairman of the Mississippi chapter of the association, assisted the local group in forming the affiliate.

Officers for the new group include Eddie Lightell, president; Judi Marks Mitchell, first vice president; Berle Harrell, second vice president; Pat Amacker, third vice president; Joyce Wells, fourth vice president; Geneva Frierson, fifth vice president;

Sheila Edgerton, financial secretary; Barbara Clark, recording secretary; and Peggy Barnes, historian.

In other business at the meeting, Lena Jacobs gave a demonstration on spring and summer hairstyling trends. She is financial secretary of National Hairdressers and Cosmetology Association, a member of Mississippi Hair Fashion Commission and past president of Jackson County Hairdressers. She was also a semi-finalist for the U.S.A. Hairstyling Olympics Team in Washington, D.C., and represented the U.S. in the European Championships at Gothenburg, Sweden.

The new affiliate plans to hold educational programs and seminars in Picayune to correspond with similar programs on state and national levels.

Alumni College set for June 21-24 at UM

The University of Mississippi's third annual Alumni College, scheduled for June 21-24, will include four classes.

The four courses include personal and business uses for computers and improving computer literacy; the life, works and impact of Nobel Prize-winner William Faulkner; finance management with studies in investments, estate planning, IRAs, money management laws and personal organization; and examining new directions in medical science.

Classes will offer more discussion and examination of subjects than in previous years with four two-hour sessions held Friday and Saturday.

Children may be enrolled in an Ole Miss summer youth program coinciding with the college including a theatre workshop for 11th and 12th graders and high school graduates June 10-24. Also scheduled are a computer camp, tennis camp, boys basketball camp and a co-ed soccer camp June 17-22 for ages 10 through 1985 high school seniors. Fees for camps are not included in the Alumni College registration fee and must be paid separately. More information may be obtained through the University's Division of Continuing Education at (601) 232-7282.

In addition to classes and workshops, the college offers a barbecue, reception, campus tours, movies and recreation. Registration fees are $40 for adults and $20 for children and include classes, entertainment, child care and diplomas. Registration deadline is June 15. Housing is available at the Alumni House Motel. Rates are $29 per night per family, or $26.25 per night single.

The college begins at 4 p.m. June 21 with late registration at 8 a.m. Friday, June 22.

The Alumni College is sponsored by the Ole Miss Alumni Association and the Division of Continuing Education. For additional information or registration, contact the Office of alumni Affairs, Alumni House, University, MS 38677; telephone 601-232-7375.

ADULT LEARNING

Two college credit courses and "the GED-TV Series" will be offered to Mississippi Educational Television viewers this summer beginning Monday, June 4.

The courses to be offered this summer are "Making It Count," a college credit introduction to data processing; "English Composition I," a college credit English course; and "the GED-TV Series," a course to help viewers prepare to take the General Educational Development test.

Persons interested in taking the courses for college credit should contact the college or university where they would like to earn credit. For information about the televised courses, viewers may call Mississippi ETV's toll-free telephone number 1-800-922-9698.

Shuttle main engine testing reaches 20-mission milestone

The Space Shuttle main engine testing program reached a major milestone recently when an engine completed a ground test demonstration, equivalent to 20 flight missions, by NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

The flight life of a Shuttle engine and its components are demonstrated through a ground test program called "certification."

Of the series of engines being built for the Shuttle by the Rocketdyne Division of Rockwell International, Inc., some are intended for actual flight use and some specifically for ground testing.

One of these "test only" engines—serial no. 2010—has been put through rigorous tests since 1981 at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories in Bay St. Louis.

At this test site, where certification and flight testing occur, under Marshall Center management, engine 2010 has accumulated a run duration of 19,900 seconds from 65 tests. It has been in test longer than any other Shuttle main engine.

Since a Shuttle engine operates about 500 seconds during a mission, the 19,900 seconds accumulated by engine 2010 equates to about 40 flights.

To provide a high degree of flight safety margin, however, NASA limits the flight life of Shuttle engines to half the lifetime demonstrated by ground testing. Thus engine 2010 has demonstrated a flight capability of 20 missions at the 104 percent trust level.

The main engines of the orbiters now in service were originally designed to provide thrust of 470,000 pounds, usually referred to as 100 percent of rated thrust.

NASA has demonstrated, however, that the engines are capable of higher trust levels, and since 1980 much of the ground tests have been run at 104 percent of rated thrust or higher.

Engine thrust in recent flights of the Shuttle have, in fact, been at the 104 percent level, which permits heavier payloads to be carried into orbit, NASA officials report.

While the maximum thrust level needed through 1985 is 104 percent, the space agency is preparing the engines to perform at still higher levels. Much of the testing has been at 109 percent of rated thrust, and the Shuttle is expected to be routinely flying at that level by 1986.

"The statistics from this 20-mission certification are very encouraging," said William Taylor, a manager of Marshall's Shuttle Engines Project.

"Of the 19,900 seconds, more than 14,000 were above the rated power level with 8,400 at 109 percent. We even ran the engine 780 seconds at 111 percent of rated thrust to demonstrate design margin."

"That gives us confidence that if one engine were to fail in flight, the Shuttle could safely rely upon the remaining two at the 109 percent level to compensate for the lost engine," he said.

Included in the accumulated time of nearly 20,000 seconds were 30 Shuttle mission simulations based on actual flight "profiles."

"To say that we ran the test based on flight profiles means that engine 2010 was run at various thrust levels to simulate actual flight condition," said Taylor.

"During an actual mission the Shuttle engines aren't run at the same levels from liftoff to orbit. It's necessary that the levels change to accommodate Shuttle structural requirements that are affected by upper atmospheric wind shear conditions. These conditions could overstress some Shuttle parts if the engine power level is not reduced—so you have to slow down, perhaps to 65 percent of rated power."

"After the Shuttle passes through its critical region, you can resume more powerful thrust levels," he said.

Also among the 20-flight certification statistics are seven simulated abort tests. These tests simulated a failed engine condition and the subsequent dependence on remaining engines to run at higher thrust levels up to 109 percent.

NASA initiated the ground test program with Rocketdyne in 1975. The Marshall Center is responsible for the Shuttle's propulsion system, which includes the three main engines of the orbiter, the external tank and the twin solid rocket boosters.

Female business owners on the rise in U.S.

Women business ownership is rapidly spreading to new areas of business activity, Jack Spradling, district director of the U.S. Small Business Administration's Office in Mississippi, said recently.

"Most women-operated businesses remain in the traditional areas of retail trade and services," he said.

"But in recent years more and more women are entering into new areas of business, including manufacturing, finance, insurance and real estate."

"President Reagan's recent Report on the State of Small Business, for example, shows the number of female-operated businesses from 1977-80 rose 20 percent in the manufacture of stone, clay and glass and 37 percent in the insurance and broker field."

"During this period there was an annual increase of 54 percent in the number of women-operated businesses in legal services," Spradling said.

Spradling said that in recent years female-operated small businesses have increased much more rapidly than male-operated small businesses.

"Today, more than one-fourth of all sole proprietorships in the United States are women-owned."

Spradling noted that new workers entering the work force are more likely to be women than men. Women are projected to increase from 42 percent of the civilian labor force today to 48 percent in 1995, he said.

"Women will probably account for nearly two of every three additions to the labor force over the next decade."

Parish News

By REV. B.C. KELLER, SVD

This is a time of waiting. After the Lord returned to the Father, the disciples gathered in prayerful vigil, looking for the coming of the Spirit. Today we imitate their watch as we await a new advent of the Spirit.

As an expression of thanks to this year's teacher of religious education, a dinner of appreciation was prepared recently by Alvina Nichols at the Parish Center for the following: Hazel Breaux, Darlene Lee, Gloria Lee, Betty Lizana, Judith Tate, Joan Thomas, Marilyn Williams and Sister Helen Marie.

We also would like to recognize the persons who by their personal involvement have made a significant contribution to the preparation of our Confirmation class: Lonnie Bradley, Jean Dorsey, Helen Morris, Cynthia Saucier, Judith Tate, Trent Tate, Clementine Williams and Marilyn Williams.

Our Pentecost Novena will be very evening at 6:30 p.m. through Saturday. (Sunday and Saturday it will start at 6:50 p.m.) Everyone is invited, especially the Holy Spirit Associates.

Our Confirmation class will meet tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. Practice for the ceremony will be Friday at 7 p.m. Parents, godparents and sponsors should also be present. The Confirmation Mass will be next Sunday at 9 a.m.

Next weekend the second collection will be for the Catholic Communication Campaign which spreads the Good News with TV, radio and other media. Half of collection will be used for diocesan TV program; other half, for national programs.

The Baby of the Fair contest is progressing well. Names and sponsors will be published next week. However, we are in need of contestants for the Miss St. Rose and the Duke and Duchess categories. Will someone please come forth! Remember, ten percent of the money raised returns to the contestants.

The Altar Society is again operating the plant table for the Fair. If anyone would care to donate some plants, please bring them to the rectory or call Marguerite Bennett (6354). They will be gratefully accepted.

Beginning on June 11 through June 22, we will have a summer Bible School for grades one through six. The children will meet from 9 a.m. through 11:30 a.m., Monday through Friday. Parents, we count on seeing your children.

On Tuesday, June 14 at 7 p.m., our Parish Council will hold its semi annual Open Meeting in the cafeteria.

Our Gospel Choir will practice Tuesday at 7 p.m.

MASS SCHEDULE
Sunday, 7 and 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Daily, Monday through Saturday, 6:30 a.m.

Saturday (Vigil) 6 p.m.
Mother of Perpetual Help Novena at beginning of Tuesday Mass.

Pentecost Novena, Monday through Friday, at 6:30 p.m.; Sunday and Saturday at 6:50 p.m.

Confessions are heard half-hour prior to weekend Masses and upon request.

Hubbard to serve fifth term as grand knight

Waveland Alderman Robert Hubbard has been elected to his fifth term as grand knight of Pere Le Duc Council No. 1522, Knights of Columbus in Bay St. Louis.

Other officers named in the May 21 election who will take office July 1 include Leslie Blaize, deputy grand knight; Lloyd O'Brien, chancellor; and Aloysius Jacobi, recorder.

Also, Richard Smith, treasurer; Edward Friloux, advocate; Alvin Kingston Sr., warder; and Anthony Scavo, inside guard.

And, Anthony Morreale, inside guard emeritus; Eugene Monti, outside guard; Morgan O'Rourke, outside guard; Gerard Godfrey, three-year trustee; Irvin Kingston, two-year trustee; and Theodore Morel, one-year trustee.

Other officers include Joe Reier, financial secretary, appointed by Supreme Council;

Fr. Henry McInerney and Fr. Francis Farrell, chaplains, appointed by grand knight, deputy grand knight and trustees in accordance with policies set by the bishop; and John Bezou, lecturer.

MEETING SCHEDULE
Monday, June 4—Regular meeting at 7 p.m. After the meeting Ms. Beth Riley from Biloxi Social Services will show slides of abortions to the knights, auxiliary and the public. No children, slides are graphic.

Sunday, June 10—Regular monthly corporate communion at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church at the 9 a.m. mass.

Monday, June 11—Fourth Degree meeting will be an election meeting.

Monday, June 18—Regular meeting will include discussion of plans for the installation of officers for the 3rd Degree.

Diocese Family Life stress seminar set

A workshop on Stress Management for the Single Again will be conducted Tuesday, June 12 at 7 p.m. at the Sacred Heart Center, 610 W. Washington St., Biloxi.

Mrs. Dorothy Triplett, project director with the Family Services Association of Greater Jackson, will discuss the symptoms of stress, identifying the sources of stress and some techniques for managing the stress.

Her presentation will specifically deal with the stress involved in separation, divorce or widowhood, which usually involves financial stress and single parenting, as well as the emotional stress connected to the loss of the spouse and the new single lifestyle.

This workshop is sponsored by the Family Life Office of Catholic Social Services as a service to their support groups: New Beginnings for the Separated and Divorced and A New Life for the Widowed; however, this program is open to the public free of charge.

The program will be repeated on Thursday, June 14 at 10 a.m. for the Daytime Discussion group of A New Life, however, any widow or widower is invited.

Call 374-8316 for more information.

SBA reports use of Answer Desk

Prospective and present small business owners in Mississippi continue to use the U.S. Small Business Administration's toll free

'Answer Desk' telephone service to get help on problems connected with their business and with the federal government, SBA officials report.

From October through February, 262 Mississippi residents called the toll-free number. Of the total calls, 146 callers requested information on financial assistance, according to Jack Spradling, director of SBA's Jackson District Office.

"SBA's 'Answer Desk' provides a valuable and popular resource to more and more people around the country," said Spradling.

During the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1983, the toll-free number received a total of 49,253 calls from around the country, Spradling said.

From October through February, 110 'Answer Desk' callers asked for management assistance, he added.

"Some 'Answer Desk' inquiries involve issues that do not involve SBA," Spradling said. "Those calls are referred to the proper government agency." The Answer Desk is operated by the SBA's Office of Advocacy and is open Monday through Friday, except for federal holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. EST.

The toll-free number—800-368-5855—also has equipment for the hearing-impaired.

We make 188 billion telephone calls per year in the United States.

Business Education Hall of Fame inducts four former teachers

The Mississippi Business Education Hall of Fame recently announced its first inductees, recognizing four educational pioneers for lifelong contributions to business education in the state.

Presented with the MBE Hall of Fame award was Margaret R. Buchanan of Brandon, a business teacher at Mississippi University for Women for 28 years.

Recognized posthumously were A. J. Lawrence and Lytle C. Fowler, former departmental chairmen in business education and office administration at University of Mississippi, and Iva Ball Jackson, who taught in high schools and colleges throughout Mississippi and Georgia for more than 40 years.

Hall of Fame honorees are selected by the professional organization's 14-member Board of Trustees, comprised of business educators from high schools, vocational centers, junior colleges, colleges and universities throughout the state.

"Business education in Mississippi will forever be indebted to the trail blazing, pioneering efforts and achievements of these and countless others," said MBE Hall of Fame Chairman Dr. R. Frank Harwood, professor of business education and office administration at Ole Miss. "This modest tribute is a feeble gesture from the current ranks to say 'thank you' for what a few have done for so many."

Ms. Buchanan graduated from Strayers Business College and the Washington School of Accountancy before earning her bachelor's and master's degrees in business education from The University of Mississippi. She taught for four years at Belhaven College and for more than 50 at Mississippi University for Women, where she is named in her honor.

Her contributions to business education were channeled through memberships in state, regional and national professional organizations and through her teaching.

Dr. Lawrence is recognized as one of the foremost pioneers of business education in the South. He influenced Mississippi business education as an author, editor, consultant to the state department of education and teacher.

A Kentucky native, he earned his undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Kentucky and received his doctorate from Columbia University in 1945. Before coming to Ole Miss in 1947 as professor and departmental chairman of business education and office administration, he taught business in high schools in Ohio, Arkansas and Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky State College, University of Kentucky and Columbia University. While at Ole Miss, he also served as registrar from 1947-50.

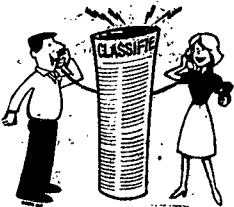

Dr. Fowler, a former student of Dr. Lawrence at the University of Kentucky, received his bachelor's degree from Tennessee Polytechnic Institute in 1932 and his master's of arts degree from Kentucky in 1937. He received his doctorate from New York University in 1955.

He came to Ole Miss in 1947 as acting assistant professor and later became chairman of business education and office administration. Prior to coming to Ole Miss, Dr. Fowler taught business in high schools and colleges in Tennessee, Kentucky, New York and West Virginia.

He began his professional career as a teacher and principal in elementary schools in Cannon County, Tenn., and ended his career as superintendent of Cannon County Schools in 1940.

college-university Business Education Teacher of the Year. Before joining Mississippi College, she taught in high schools in Mississippi and Georgia for nearly 20 years.

A native of Green County, Ms. Jackson received her bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi and master of business education degree from Ole Miss. Throughout her teaching career, she was member and official of numerous professional business organizations, including the Mississippi Education Association, the Mississippi Business Education Association and the American Association of University Women.
